Discovered in prehistoric years

Not known who discovered the
element

Historically, copper is the first metal to be worked by people

The name is derived from the Latin
'Cyprium aes',
meaning a metal from Cyprus Allotropes

The Statue of Liberty is made of more than 80,000 Kg of copper from Norway's Visnes Copper Mines. It was made by French artisans. It withstood the long journey from France to America and still resisting the salty sea air.
