

Rhodium

Rh

45

Discovered in 1803

Discovered by William Hyde Wollaston

Rhodium is used to coat optic fibre & in cars as catalytic
converters

The name is derived from 'Rhodon', the Greek word for rose coloured

Rhodium is the rarest of all non-radioactive metals. World production is about 30 tonnes per year