

Strontium

Sr

38

Discovered in 1790

Discovered by Adair
Crawford

Strontium salts
give fire works and flare the brilliant
red colors

Strontium is named after Strontian, a small town in Scotland

Strontium is one of the best high-energy beta-emitters - used to generate electricity for space vehicles, remote weather stations and navigation buoy.